The Book Of Revelation

Introduction

“The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave Him to show His servants—things which must shortly take place.” (Re 1:1)

So begins the book of Revelation, one of the most challenging books in the Bible. It is the first book that many new to the Bible want to study, while it is often neglected by mature Christians. It has been used by false teachers and prophets to lead people into doomsday cults. Yet when properly handled, it can be a wonderful blessing to those who read and meditate upon it.

Who wrote this book? How is it unique? How should we interpret it? Why should we study it? These are questions we will seek to answer in this introduction.

Unique Nature Of The Book

Revelation is certainly different from other books of the New Testament. It is also very different from any kind of writing that is familiar to most people today. Unfortunately, this has caused some people to shy away from the book; or on the other hand, to misuse it in propagating wild and fanciful theories. Most people conclude it is just too mysterious to understand. But it was actually written to make things clearer! The word “revelation” in the Greek is apokalupsis, which means “an uncovering” or “unveiling.” It is therefore a book designed to uncover or unveil, not conceal.

Part of the challenge in understanding the book is that it is written in a style not familiar to modern man. It is an example of what is called “apocalyptic literature” which was quite popular from 200 B.C. to 200 A.D. As such, it was a type of literature well known to the Jews and Christians of the first century church. Features of apocalyptic literature include the use of highly symbolic or figurative language (cf. “signified”, Re 1:1). It was normally written in times of persecution, usually depicting the conflict between good and evil.

There are other examples of apocalyptic literature in the Bible. In the Old Testament, for example, the books of Ezekiel, Daniel, and Zechariah each contain elements of this style of writing. In the New Testament, Matthew 24 contains apocalyptic elements.

Understanding The Book

The early church likely did not have the problem understanding the book as we do today. They were well acquainted with the style of apocalyptic literature. They were living at a time when the symbols of the book were likely familiar to them (similar to how a picture of a donkey fighting an elephant would be understood by us as depicting conflict between the Democratic and Republican parties). In fact, I believe the book was originally intended to be understood by a casual hearing, as implied by the opening beatitude:

“Blessed is he who reads and those who hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written in it; for the time is near.” (Re 1:3)

This verse suggests a setting in which one is reading while others listen. The listeners were expected to understand enough to be blessed by what they heard.
Our difficulty with this book is due to our unfamiliarity with apocalyptic literature as a method of communicating a message. We are also far removed from the historical and cultural context of the times which would make the symbolism easier to understand. To properly interpret the book, we must try to understand the historical context in which it was written. We must also interpret it in a manner that would have been meaningful to those to whom it was first addressed. It also behooves us to pay close attention to those passages or statements which are clear and easy to understand.

Methods Of Interpretation

Different methods of interpreting the book generally fall into four views:

The “preterist” view - The book refers to events that were fulfilled in the first century A.D., or shortly thereafter. It was written primarily to encourage the original readers. Its value for today would therefore be didactic (teaching the value of faithfulness to God).

The “historicist” view - The book provides a panoramic view of the experience of the church as it proceeds throughout history. This view finds in the book such events as the rise of Catholicism, Islam, the Protestant reformation, world wars, etc., ending with the return of Christ. As such it would encourage Christians no matter when they lived.

The “futurist” view - Apart from the first few chapters, the book depicts events which immediately precede the second coming of Christ. Therefore most of the book has yet to be fulfilled (or is being fulfilled now), and its value is primarily for Christians who will be living at the time Jesus returns.

The “idealist” view - The book does not deal with any specific historical situation. Instead, it is simply enforcing the principle that good will ultimately triumph over evil. As such the book is applicable to any age.

Preferred Method Of Interpretation

I believe a proper interpretation of the book incorporates some of all these views. In my estimation, the “preterist” view has the most merit for the following reasons:

- The book was written specifically to seven churches in Asia (modern Turkey) - Re 1:4
- Its purpose was to uncover or reveal “things which must shortly come to pass” - Re 1:1,3; 22:6,10
- John was told, “Do not seal the words of the prophecy of this book, for the time is at hand” - Re 22:10

Compare the last two points with Daniel 8:26, where Daniel was told to “seal up” his vision, “for it refers to many days in the future”. We know that his vision was fulfilled within several hundred years. John, however, was told “do not seal” what he had seen, “for the time is at hand”. How could this be, if the bulk of Revelation refers to what has yet to occur almost two thousands later? This is a problem I see with the “futurist” view, which places primary fulfillment of the book thousands of years after its composition.

Place yourself in the position of those Christians in the churches of Asia in the first century. They were told that the things described in the Revelation would “shortly come to pass”, which should comfort them. But according to the “futurist” view, it has been nearly 2000 years and much of the book has yet to be fulfilled! That would be like someone today writing that something is soon coming to pass, when in reality it will be 4000 A.D. before it does! How would a book depicting events to occur thousands of years in the future comfort those who were suffering in the first century A.D.?

This is not to say there are no “futurist” elements in the book. I understand chapters 20-22 to deal with the ultimate destiny of the redeemed, which would have been of great interest and comfort to the Christians suffering in the first century.

My approach to the book, therefore, will be primarily from the preterist viewpoint, with occasional elements from other viewpoints.

The Author

John, identified as one “who bore witness to the word of God, and to the testimony of Jesus Christ” (Re 1:1-2). While debated by some, he was most likely the apostle John, brother of James, and author of the gospel of John and three epistles. His authorship of this book is supported by the testimony of Justin Martyr (165 A.D.), Clement of Alexandria (220 A.D.), Hippolytus (236 A.D.), and Origen (254 A.D.).

Date Of The Book

Dating when the book was written is not without controversy. When one dates the book will certainly have a bearing upon one’s interpretation of the book, especially if one follows the “preterist” view. Two dates are usually proposed:

- An “early date”, around 64-68 A.D., during the reign of the Roman emperor, Nero
- A “late date”, around 95-96 A.D., during the reign of emperor Domitian

The external evidence (evidence outside the book itself) is inconclusive. In support for the late date, appeal is often made to a statement of Irenaeus who lived in the late 2nd century A.D. His statement is rather ambiguous, however, and can be understood in several ways (see Redating The New Testament, by John A. T. Robinson, for a detailed examination of Irenaeus’ quotation).

In support for the early date, the Syriac version of the New Testament (dating back to the 2nd century A.D.) says the book was written during the reign of Nero. The Muratorian Fragment (170-190 A.D.) and the Monarchian Prologues (250-350 A.D.) claim that Paul wrote to seven churches following the pattern of John’s example in Revelation, placing the book of Revelation even before some of the Pauline epistles (Expositor’s Bible Commentary, Vol. 12; p. 406).

Because of the contradictory nature of the external evidence, I place more weight on the internal evidence (evidence from within the book itself). I believe the book itself supports a date of 70 A.D., before the destruction of Jerusalem and during the reign of Vespasian.

This internal evidence includes the following:

- In Re 11:1-14 the temple, which was demolished in August of 70 A.D., is still standing. Advocates of the “late date” naturally understand this passage in a strictly figurative sense. While somewhat figurative, the allusion to the crucifixion of our Lord (Re 11:8) compel us to think of the historical Jerusalem (Philip Schaff).
- In Re 17:9-11, we find mention of EIGHT “kings”. If these “kings” are emperors of Rome, then starting with Augustus the first FIVE were: Augustus, Tiberius, Caligula, Claudius and Nero (who died June 9, 68 A.D.). Nero’s death left the empire in an uproar. This may be the “deadly wound” in Re 13:3,12,14. Three men (Galba, Otho, and Vitellius) tried vainly to consolidate power over the empire, but it was Vespasian who restored order in 70 A.D. Thus, the “deadly wound” was healed, and Vespasian would be the SIXTH “king” (or the “one is” in Re 17:10). This would make Titus the SEVENTH emperor and Domitian the EIGHTH.

- Notice carefully, that in Re 17:8,11 John was told that the beast “is not”. It “was”, and “is about to come” (ASV), but at the time the Revelation was being given, the beast “IS NOT”. If we understand (as I do) that the “beast” represents imperial Rome as personified in its emperors Nero and Domitian, then Revelation could NOT have been written during the reigns of either Nero or Domitian!

- The condition of persecution that had been experienced already by those in the book are similar to that mentioned by Peter. He wrote to the Christians in Asia Minor also, just a few years before (cf. 1Pe 1:1). They were undergoing persecution similar to that described in Re 2 & 3 (cf. 1Pe 1:6; 4:12; 5:9); i.e., persecution by the Jews with the help of Roman authorities, something that had been going on since the days of Paul’s first missionary journey.

Therefore I suggest the internal evidence indicates that the Revelation was given during the reign of VESPASIAN, the SIXTH emperor, while the “beast is not”. This would place the date of the book around the spring of 70 A.D. (as suggested by Philip Schaff, History Of The Church, Vol. I). A date between the death of Nero in 68 A.D. and the fall of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. was also favored by F. J. A. Hort, J. B. Lightfoot, and B. F. Westcott (John A. T. Robinson, Redating The New Testament, p. 224). Another advocate of an early date is F. F. Bruce.

Referring to Philip Schaff, who at one time held the “late date”, I find his following quotation to be of interest:

“The early date is best suited for the nature and object of the Apocalypse, and facilitates its historical understanding. Christ pointed in his eschatological discourses to the destruction of Jerusalem and the preceding tribulation as the great crisis in the history of the theocracy and the type of the judgment of the world. And there never was a more alarming state of society.”

“The horrors of the French Revolution were confined to one country, but the tribulation of the six years preceding the destruction of Jerusalem extended over the whole Roman empire and embraced wars and rebellions, frequent and unusual conflagrations, earthquakes and famines and plagues, and all sorts of public calamities and miseries untold. It seemed, indeed, that the world, shaken to its very center, was coming to a close, and every Christian must have felt that the prophecies of Christ were being fulfilled before his eyes.”

“It was at this unique juncture in the history of mankind that St. John, with the consuming fire in Rome and the infernal spectacle of the Neronian persecution behind him, the terrors of the Jewish war and the Roman interregnum around him, and the catastrophe of Jerusalem and the Jewish theocracy before him, received those wonderful visions of the impending conflicts and final triumphs of the Christian church. His was truly a book of the times and for the times, and administered to the persecuted brethren the one but all-sufficient consolation: Maranatha! Maranatha!” (History of The Christian Church, Vol. I, pp. 836-837)
The Purpose Of The Book

Its purpose is clearly stated at the beginning and end of the book (cf. Re 1:1,3; 22:6,10):

To reveal “things which must shortly come to pass”

In particular, it is a revelation from Christ Himself of the judgment to come upon those who were persecuting His people (cf. Re 6:9-11; 16:5-7). This judgment was directed especially toward those who had been deceived by Satan to attack the Church of Christ. As stated by Philip Schaff:

“Undoubtedly he had in view primarily the overthrow of Jerusalem and heathen Rome, the two great foes of Christianity at that time.”

Again, I would suggest that the purpose of the book is to reveal how Christ was going to bring judgment on Jerusalem and Rome for rejecting God and persecuting His people. This judgment occurred with the destruction of Jerusalem in the fall of 70 A.D., and with the final cessation of persecution by Rome in 313 A.D. when Constantine became an emperor supportive of Christianity.

In fulfilling this purpose, the book is designed to warn and comfort. For erring disciples, it is a book of warning (“repent” or else, cf. Re 2:5,16). For faithful disciples, it is a book of comfort (“blessed” are those who “overcome”, cf. Re 1:3; 2:7; 3:21; 14:13; 22:14).

Key Verse

If there is one verse that summarizes the theme of the book of Revelation, it is this one:

“These will make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb will overcome them, for He is Lord of lords and King of kings; and those who are with Him are called, chosen, and faithful.” (Re 17:14)

The Book Of Revelation

Chapter One

The Revelation of Jesus Christ begins with a clear statement of origin and purpose. Given to Jesus by God to show His servants things which must soon take place, it is designed to bless those who read, hear and keep the words of the prophecy (1-3). John then addresses the seven churches in Asia (western Turkey), offering grace and peace from each member of the Godhead with descriptive terms which become more significant later in the epistle (4-6). His greeting is followed with a declaration concerning the Lord’s coming, and a self-designation as expressed by the Lord Himself (7-8).

At this point John explains how he was commissioned to record the Revelation. While on the island of Patmos (likely in exile for preaching the word of God), he was in the Spirit on the Lord’s day when he heard a loud voice behind him. The voice identified itself as “the Alpha and Omega, the First and the Last”, and then charged him to write what he saw to seven churches in Asia (9-11). Turning to see the voice, John saw seven golden lampstands and in their midst the Son of Man. Describing the awesome appearance of the Son of Man and his own reaction, John then records how Jesus comforted and then charged him to write what he has seen and will see (12-19). The chapter ends with the Lord’s explanation that the seven stars in His right hand represent the angels (messengers?) of the seven churches, and the seven lampstands signify the seven churches themselves (20).

Points To Ponder

- That the book was written to specific churches of things that would soon take place
- The implications of what is said about Jesus, in the greeting by John and in the words of Jesus Himself

Chapter Two

In this chapter John is instructed to write to four churches in Asia: Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamos, and Thyatira. The Lord generally follows the same format: His self-designation, commendation, condemnation and related warning, exhortation and promise. Each letter closes with the admonition, "He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches." This suggests the letters were not just for the personal benefit of the churches addressed.

The church at Ephesus is commended for its steadfastness, especially against false apostles. But while standing for the truth, they had lost their first love. Exhorted to repent and be restored by doing the "first works", they are warned that their "lampstand" would be removed if they did not repent (1-7).

The church at Smyrna is commended for being "rich" despite their tribulation and poverty. Unlike most churches, there are no words of condemnation directed toward it. While they would experience a little persecution, they are exhorted to remain faithful to death (8-11).

The church at Pergamos is also praised for its steadfastness, but faulted for allowing false teachers in their midst. The Lord threatens to come and fight with the sword of His mouth if there is no repentance (12-17).

The church at Thyatira is also commended, for their last works are more than their first. But they too have a false teacher and followers which jeopardize the condition of the church. Despite giving this "Jezebel" time to repent, she has not and so the Lord intends to make her and her followers an example before the other churches (18-29).

I find noteworthy the connection between these letters with what was seen in chapter one, and what will be seen in succeeding chapters. In most cases the Lord’s self-designation borrows something from the vision of the Son of Man in chapter one, which relates somehow with the particular message in which it is found. Also, we will see how most of the promises to those who overcome will be fulfilled in the unfolding of the visions that begin in chapter four.

Chapter Three

The Lord continues His letters to the churches in Asia, with this chapter containing those written to Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea. The church in Sardis is rebuked for having a name that they are alive, when in reality they are dead. With their works not perfected before God, they are exhorted to be watchful and to strengthen the things which remain. They are also told to remember how they had received and heard in the past, to hold fast and repent. Otherwise, the Lord will come upon them as a thief in the night. Notice is taken, however, of a few in Sardis who had not defiled their garments and are still worthy, who are promised to walk with the Lord in white (1-6).

The church in Philadelphia is promised an open door that none can shut because they had kept the Lord’s word and not denied His name. Their enemies, those who claim to be Jews but are not, will be made to worship before them, and the church will be kept from the trial that was about to test those on the earth. With an announcement of His quick coming, they are exhorted to hold fast what they have that none take their crown (7-13).

The church of Laodicea is then described as lukewarm, for which the Lord threatens to spew them out of His mouth. While claiming to be rich, they are blind to their true condition. Therefore the Lord counsels them to buy from Him those things they truly need. His strong words are indicative of His love for them, and the fact that He stands ready to re-enter their hearts if they will open to Him (14-22).

As before, each letter ends with wonderful promises to those who overcome. In most cases, the manner in which the promises are to be fulfilled is illustrated in the visions to come.

Chapter Four

The visions of Revelation now begin in earnest. Upon seeing a door standing open in heaven and hearing a trumpet-like voice promising to show him of things which must take place, John is transported to the throne room of God. He describes what he hears and sees with vivid and colorful imagery. The One on the throne radiates like jasper and sardius stones, surrounded by an emerald rainbow. The colors may reflect the characteristics of God, such as holiness, righteousness, justice, and mercy, or they may simply signify His splendor and majesty. (1-3).

John takes special note of twenty-four elders clothed with white robes and crowns of gold, sitting on thrones around the throne of God. Summers and Hailey suggest that they depict the twelve patriarchs of Israel and the twelve apostles, who represent the redeemed of both covenants now united in Christ. Note that in Rev 5:8-9 they do seem to speak in behalf of the redeemed (4).

From the throne proceeded lightning, thunder, and voices, which may illustrate divine power and judgments coming from God. Before the throne are seven lamps of fire, explained as the seven Spirits of God. This likely symbolizes the Holy Spirit in His work of illumination and revelation of God's word to man (Summers). A sea of glass like crystal is also before the throne, perhaps symbolizing the transcendence of God that presently separates God and His people (5-6a).

There are four living creatures, similar in some respects and yet different in others, united in their constant praise of God for His eternal holiness. Though not exactly like the cherubim seen by Ezekiel (cf. Ezek 1, 10), they appear to serve similar functions. Hailey suggests they may be a special order of heavenly beings, perhaps the highest and closest to the throne, who serve God's majestic will (6b-8). As the four living creatures praise Him who sits on the throne, the twenty-four elders join in by falling down, casting their crowns before the throne, and praising God as the Eternal Creator (9-11).

This scene, along with that in chapter five, appears designed to set the stage for what follows. At the outset, we are shown the first guarantee of ultimate victory: God is on His throne! (Summers) The praise offered by the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders reinforce the truth that the One on the throne (and in ultimate control) is none other than the Lord God Almighty, Eternal and Holy, the Creator who holds all things together. He is therefore worthy of glory, honor and power! He is the one to revere, not some man!

Points To Ponder

- The implication of the vision of God on His throne
- How this vision along with the one in chapter five sets the stage for what follows

The Book Of Revelation

Chapter Five

The scene that began in chapter four continues. Whereas the theme of chapter four can be stated as "God is on His throne!", the theme of this chapter may be called "Worthy is the Lamb!"

John’s attention is drawn to a scroll in the right hand of God. Written on the inside and on the back, it is sealed with seven seals. A strong angel proclaims "Who is worthy to open the scroll and to loose its seals?" At first there seems to be none in heaven and on earth deemed worthy to open the scroll or look at it. This prompted John to weep (1-4).

But one of the twenty-four elders tells him not to weep, for One described as “the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David” (cf. Gen 49:9-10; Isa 11:10) has prevailed so to be able to open the scroll and loose its seals. In the midst of the throne and of the living creatures and the elders, John sees a Lamb standing as though slain (i.e., Jesus - cf. Jn 1:29), with seven horns and seven eyes. The seven eyes are explained as the seven Spirits of God sent out into all the earth (cf. Zech 4:10). As suggested before (cf. Re 1:4; 3:1; 4:9) they represent the Holy Spirit, while the seven horns are indicative of great strength (cf. Deu 33:17; 1Sa 2:10). The Lamb is then seen as taking the scroll out of God’s right hand (5-7).

Taking the scroll prompts the four living creatures and twenty-four elders to fall down before the Lamb. Each possessing a harp (perhaps symbolizing praise, Hailey) and golden bowls of incense which depict the prayers of the saints, they sing a new song praising the Lamb as worthy to take the scroll. They proclaim His worthiness on the basis of being slain and redeeming by His blood those from every nation who are made kings and priests to God who shall reign on the earth (cf. Re 1:5-6; 2:26-27; 1Pe 2:9). The voices of thousands of angels around the throne then join in with their praise of the Lamb who was slain as worthy to receive power, riches, wisdom, strength, honor, glory, and blessing. Finally, every creature in heaven, earth, and sea join in with praise for both Him who sits on the throne (God) and the Lamb (Jesus). To which the four living creatures say “Amen!” and the twenty-four elders fall down and worship (8-14).

This awesome scene should certainly encourage the faithful Christian. As stated by Ray Summers:

“Such a scene was calculated to bring new courage and new hope to the hearts of John’s first readers, the persecuted Christians of Asia; it brings the same cheer to Christian hearts in any age. Believing in the power of God (Ch. 4) and the redeeming love of God (Ch. 5), there is no enemy or force of evil which Christians need to fear. They can enter the conflict or endure the evil knowing that God is still on his throne; he has not laid aside his scepter; he has not abandoned his throne to any other.”

What will the scroll reveal? I believe it divulges God’s righteous indignation upon those who rejected His Christ and persecuted His people. Also, how His suffering saints would eventually overcome. As long as the scroll was sealed, the workings of God was still a mystery. But as the seals are broken (Re 6:1-8:1), we have: “the Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave Him to show His servants -- things which must shortly take place.” (Re 1:1)
Points To Ponder

- What is revealed about the Lamb (Jesus), and what His death accomplished
- The impact this scene would have had on the persecuted Christians in Asia

Chapter Six

In this chapter the Lamb looses six of the seven seals on the scroll. The first four seals reveal four horses and their riders (cf. Zec 6:1-8), commonly referred today as “The Four Horsemen Of The Apocalypse”. Notice what is said about the different riders:

“...a crown was given to him...” (the rider on the white horse)
“...it was granted to the one...there was given to him...” (the rider on the red horse)
“...a voice in the midst of the four living creatures saying” (the rider on the black horse)
“...power was given to them...” (riders on the pale horse - Death and Hades)

Who had the power to give a crown, to grant such authority? Who in the midst of the four living creatures might have spoken? Who had power to give to Death and Hades? When we consider that Jesus is the ruler of the kings of the earth (Re 1:5), that He has the keys of Hades and of Death (Re 1:18), and that He was in the midst of the four living creatures (Re 5:6), it seems clear that the answer is Christ! In other words, the horses and their riders were acting upon the authority and power given them by Christ. Therefore I suggest the following explanations for the first four seals (1-8):

The white horse and its rider - Represents military conquest, such as God used to bring judgment upon Assyria (Isa 10:5-7,12-13,15-16) and Babylon (Isa 13:17-20).

The red horse and its rider - Represents civil war, in which people would kill one another, such as God used in His judgment against Egypt (Isa 19:1-4).

The black horse and its rider - Represents famine, where necessities (wheat and barley) would be scarce, while luxuries (oil and wine) might be in abundance but of little interest to the hungry. God had used famine in His judgment upon Israel (Jer 14:11-12).

The pale horse and its riders (Death and Hades) - Represents death brought about by the sword, hunger, death (pestilence), and beasts of the earth. Such severe judgments God had brought upon Jerusalem in the past (Eze 5:17; 6:12; 14:21).

Some see the fulfillment of these things in the Roman advance on Jerusalem during A.D. 67-70, as described by Flavius Josephus in his book, The Wars Of The Jews (Bass, Gentry).

With the fifth seal (9-11) we are told why God would bring such judgment. Souls have been slain for the word of God and their testimony, and when the time is right the wicked will be avenged (cf. Lk 18:7-8). Meanwhile, souls of the slain are comforted with white robes and rest. Who were these souls? Perhaps Christians who had already paid the supreme price for following Jesus, such as Stephen (Ac 7:54-8:2), James (Ac 12:1-2), Antipas (Re 2:13).

The sixth seal (12-17) describes cosmic disturbances and the despair of those trying to hide from God’s wrath. Is this scene depicting the end of time (cf. 2Pe 3:7-12)? The language is reminiscent of that describing God’s judgment upon Babylon (Isa 13:1-22) and Samaria (Hos 10:7-8). Jesus used similar language to warn people of the impending destruction of Jerusalem (Lk 23:28-30). Therefore I believe it refers to judgment upon unbelieving Israel for persecuting God’s people in the 1st century. The guilty would not escape the Lamb’s wrath! Who would stand in that day? The answer is in the next chapter.

The Book Of Revelation

Chapter Seven

Between the sixth and seventh seals, there is an interlude in which John sees two visions. They may be designed to answer the question raised at the end of the previous chapter: “For the great day of His wrath has come, and who is able to stand?” (Re 6:17)

In the first vision John sees four angels standing at the four corners of the earth, holding back the winds from blowing on the earth, sea, or on any tree. An angel arises from the east having the seal of the living God, who cries out to the other four angels not to harm the earth, etc., until the servants of God have been sealed on their foreheads. John then hears the number of those who are sealed. They are 144,000 of all the tribes of the children of Israel, with 12,000 from each tribe. Of interest is the fact that Ephraim and Dan are not mentioned, while Levi and Joseph are counted as tribes. This suggests to many that the 144,000 of Israel is symbolic (1-8).

The second vision reveals a large innumerable multitude of all nations standing before the throne and the Lamb. Clothed with white robes and palm branches in their hands, they cry out “Salvation belongs to our God who sits on the throne, and to the Lamb!” They are joined in their praise by angels, the elders, and four living creatures. John is then told by one of the elders that those arrayed in white robes have come out of the great tribulation, with their robes washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb. Before the throne of God, they serve Him day and night in His temple. Future blessings are then described: God will dwell among them, they shall be free from hunger, thirst, and the heat of the sun. The Lamb will shepherd them and lead them to fountains of living waters, and God will wipe all tears from their eyes (9-17).

What do the two visions mean? The 144,000 of Israel sealed on earth may represent faithful Jewish Christians in Palestine leading up to the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70. They are sealed and thereby spared from God’s wrath (cf. Eze 9:1-11). Eusebius says that Jewish Christians were able to flee to Pella before the Romans overwhelmed Jerusalem, just as Jesus urged His disciples to do in Lk 21:20-24.

The second vision provides hope for any who must pass through “the great tribulation” (not just Israel, but “of all nations, tribes, peoples, and tongues”), for it would not be limited to Palestine, but would spread throughout the Roman empire. Provided they have washed their robes in the blood of the Lamb, they are assured that they will serve God in His temple in “the intermediate state” (between death and the resurrection). They are also promised future blessings in “the eternal state” (after the resurrection and judgment, cf. Re 7:16-17 with Re 21:1-4).

Thus it would be Jewish Christians in Palestine, and Christians among all nations willing to remain faithful, who would be able to stand in the day of God’s wrath!

- The comfort promised those who would pass through the great tribulation

Chapter Eight

Following the “interlude” of the previous chapter, in which reassuring and comforting scenes concerning the saints were seen, the seventh seal is now opened. For about a half hour, there is silence in heaven (1).

In contrast to all that happened before, the silence must have been striking! Possibly it signifies awe in heaven for what has already been revealed, or for what is about to be revealed. When God acts, those on earth should be in awe (cf. Hab 2:20; Zec 2:13). Should we not expect a similar reaction from His creatures in heaven (Zep 1:7)?

Seven angels are seen standing before God to whom are given seven trumpets. Before they sound the trumpets, another angel with a golden censer comes and stands before the altar. To this angel is given much incense to offer along with the prayers of the saints upon the golden altar before the throne. The smoke of the incense and the prayers of the saints ascend before God from the angel’s hand. Then the angel takes the censer, fills it with fire from the altar, and threw it to the earth. Noises, thunderings, lightnings and an earthquake follow, and the seven angels with the seven trumpets prepare to sound (2-6).

The scene appears to suggest that the sounding of the seven trumpets and the things to follow is God’s response to the prayers of the saints. It is reminiscent of what Jesus taught in His parable of the persistent widow: “And shall God not avenge His own elect who cry out day and night to Him, though He bears long with them?” (Lk 18:7; cf. also Re 6:9-10).

As the first four angels sound their trumpets in turn, the environment in particular is impacted:

- The first trumpet - Hail and fire, mingled with blood, are thrown to earth; a third of the trees and all the green grass were burned up (7).

- The second trumpet - Something like a great burning mountain is thrown into the sea, turning a third of it into blood; a third of the sea creatures died, and a third of the ships were destroyed (8-9).

- The third trumpet - A great burning star named Wormwood falls on a third of the rivers and springs of water; a third of the waters became wormwood (a bitter wood) and many men died from the bitter water (10-11).

- The fourth trumpet - A third of the sun, moon, and stars are struck, so that a third of them were darkened; thus a third of the day and night did not shine (12).

The first four trumpets may signify natural calamities that God would use in His judgment against apostate Israel who oppressed His people. They are reminiscent of the Egyptian plagues (cf. Exo 9-10), brought now against herself that is later called “Egypt” (Re 11:8). That only a third is affected, along with the symbolism of trumpets, suggests that the purpose of these judgments would be to warn, giving many opportunity to repent.

Before the final three trumpets sound, an angel (or eagle, in some mss) flies through the midst of heaven with loud voice proclaiming a three-fold woe on the inhabitants of the earth (13). While the first four trumpets were bad enough, the worst was yet to come!

The Book Of Revelation

Chapter Nine

Following the ominous warning of the angel (eagle) in the previous chapter, the fifth angel sounds his trumpet. John sees a star fallen from heaven, to whom is given the key to the bottomless pit. As the pit is opened, smoke rises that darkens the sun and air. Then locusts with power like scorpions came out of the smoke, to whom was given power to harm only those who did not have the seal of God on their forehead. Their power was limited only to torment, not kill, and only for five months. Even so, men wished they could die. John describes the appearance of the locusts, and identifies their king as the angel of the bottomless pit whose name in Hebrew is Abaddon and in Greek is Apollyon, both meaning “destruction”. Thus ends the first “woe”, with two more to come (1-12).

When the sixth angel sounds his trumpet, John hears a voice from the four horns of the golden altar before God. It tells the sixth angel to release four angels who have been bound at the river Euphrates. These angels had been prepared for the hour, day, month and year, to kill a third of mankind. At this point John hears the number of an army of two hundred million horsemen. Describing the colorful breastplates of those on the horses, he also relates how the lion-like heads of the horses blew fire, smoke and brimstone which killed a third of mankind. They also did much harm with serpent-like tails. Despite these two “woes”, the rest of mankind did not repent of their idolatry, murders, sorceries, sexual immoralities and thefts (13-21).

As one can imagine, attempts to interpret these visions have been many and some quite fanciful. Together with the first four trumpets, I suggest the fifth and sixth trumpets signify tools at God’s disposal to bring wrath upon the persecutors of His people. Though allowed to go only so far, Satan’s influence can have the effect of weakening a nation from within. There is also the threat of external invasion by enemy forces. Therefore I concur with others that the vision of locusts from the bottomless pit symbolizes the hellish rottenness and internal decadence that would weaken the enemies of God’s people from within. The two hundred million horsemen symbolize external invasion as another instrument God would use. Together with natural calamities, (depicted in the first four trumpets), these combined to bring down apostate Israel (cf. Mt 12:43-45; Lk 21:20-24).

As Christians in John’s day were oppressed by what seemed to be invincible opponents, visions like these would remind them that those “who do not have the seal of God on their forehead” (Re 9:4; 7:3) would be susceptible to God’s wrath.

Chapter Ten

Just as there was an interlude between the sixth and seventh seals that included two visions designed to comfort the saints, so we find an interlude between the sixth and seventh trumpets with three visions that would have similar effect.

Chapter ten contains the first vision in this second interlude, in which John describes a mighty angel coming down from heaven and standing with his right foot on the sea and his left on the land. Of particular note is a little book in the angel’s hand. When the angel cried out with lion-like voice, seven thunders uttered their voices, but John is forbidden by a voice from heaven to write the things which the thunders uttered. At this point the mighty angel swears by God that there will be delay no longer, for when the seventh angel sounds his trumpet the mystery of God will be finished, as God declared to His servants the prophets (1-7).

Then the voice from heaven tells John to take the book from the angel. As he does so, the angel tells him to eat the book, with a warning that while it will be sweet as honey in his mouth, it will make his stomach bitter. When John eats the book, he is told that he must again prophesy about many peoples, nations, tongues and kings (8-11).

The significance of eating the little book is clear enough, for it symbolizes John mastering the contents of the message (cf. Eze 2:1-3:11). As to its contents, it may pertain to the prophecies of chapters 12-22, which certainly contains prophecies of peoples, nations, kings, etc. While the sounding of the seventh trumpet would indicate the mystery of God was finished regarding the judgment of Israel, John would be shown more things to proclaim regarding the judgment of Rome starting in chapter 12.

The significance of the seven thunders may forever remain an enigma. Summers believes that John was forbidden to record their utterances because there would be delay no longer and the time for warning was over. Hailey suggests that it may indicate that God has many unrevealed weapons in His arsenal of judgments to be used at His discretion, and that man cannot know all of God’s ways.

This vision appears designed to impress upon John that with the sounding of the seventh trumpet his work will not be over. Indeed, in chapters 12-22 we shall see the revelation of God's judgment against pagan Rome and ultimately the world.

Points To Ponder

- The first vision of the interlude between the sounding of the sixth and seven trumpets
- The significance of the little book given to John to eat

Chapter Eleven

As the interlude between the sixth and seventh trumpets continues, two more visions are seen. The first involves John himself as he is given a reed and told to measure the temple of God, the altar, and those worshipping there. He is instructed, however, not to measure the court outside the temple, for it has been given to the Gentiles who will tread underfoot the holy city for forty-two months (1-2). This vision may illustrate that while the city of Jerusalem will undergo great persecution during the Jewish War, which lasted about 3 ½ years (42 months), the true temple of God will not be destroyed (the church, cf. 1Co 3:16; Ep 2:19-22).

Then there is the vision of the two witnesses, which falls into three sections. With power they prophesy 1,260 days (42 months), clothed in sackcloth. Identified as the two olive trees and the two lampstands standing before the throne of God, they have the power to devour with fire from their mouths those who wish to harm them. They also have power to stop the rain during the days of their prophesying, to turn water to blood, and to strike the earth with plagues (3-6). But when their testimony is completed, the beast from the bottomless pit makes war with them and kills them. For three and half days their bodies lies in the street of the great city that is spiritually called Sodom and Egypt (where Jesus was crucified, i.e., Jerusalem). Those who had been tormented by the two prophets rejoice, make merry and exchange gifts (7-10). However, after three and a half days they are raised to life and ascend into heaven, bringing great fear on those who saw them. In the same hour a great earthquake occurs in which a tenth of the city fell and 7000 men were killed. The rest were afraid and gave glory to God (11-13).

The two witnesses are reminiscent of Moses and Elijah, also Joshua and Zerubbabel (cf. Zec 3-4) perhaps even John the Baptist and Jesus, but I do not believe they portend two literal persons. Rather, they represent the witness of the church, with the number two signifying the strength of their witness (e.g., "two or more witnesses"). When their testimony is completed, there will be a time of persecution by "the beast" (later identified as Rome, Re 17:7-17) and those of "the great city" (already identified as Jerusalem, Re 11:8). However, the witnesses (i.e., the church) will be victorious, symbolized by their resurrection and ascension to heaven.

The interlude ended, it is time for the third woe and final trumpet. As the seventh angel sounded, loud voices in heaven proclaimed “The kingdoms of this world have become the kingdoms of our Lord and of His Christ, and He shall reign forever and ever!” The twenty-four elders then fell on their faces and worshiped God, giving thanks to Him for having taken His great power and reigned. While the nations were angry, His wrath has come. So also has the time come for the dead to be judged (which may refer to the martyrs, who were now vindicated, cf. Re 6:9-11), His servants the prophets and the saints to be rewarded, and for the destruction of those who destroy the earth. Then the temple of God was opened in heaven, with the ark of the covenant in the temple, accompanied by lightnings, noises, thunderings, an earthquake and hail (15-19).

The physical temple in Jerusalem, which along with the ark (that had disappeared long before) was once the focal point of God’s worship and reign, is no more. Now the temple and the ark are seen in heaven, perhaps symbolizing that the worship and reign of God has

We have reached the climax of the first half of the Revelation, in which we have been shown judgment against unbelieving Israel, especially the city of Jerusalem. Through the visions of the seven seals and seven trumpets we learn of the arsenal at God’s disposal: conquest, war, famine, pestilence, natural calamities, moral decay, external invasion. Just as God used such instruments in His dealings with the nations in the Old Testament, so His Son would use His power to reign over the nations with a rod of iron (cf. Re 1:5; 2:27; 3:21).

Truly, “The kingdoms of this world have become the kingdoms of our Lord and of His Christ, and He shall reign forever and ever!” (Re 11:15). The destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70, as foretold by Jesus in Matthew 24, Mark 13, and Luke 21, exemplified the power of His reign over the nations. His victory over Rome described later in Revelation will confirm His power and dominion as King of kings and Lord of lords (cf. Re 17:14).

We have also seen visions designed to comfort the saints being oppressed by their enemies, especially martyrs. God has taken notice of their suffering, and while persecution may temporarily be their lot, victory will ultimately be theirs! Those who suffer death at the hands of their enemies are promised salvation and the blessing of being in the presence and care of the Lord. Nothing can totally stop their witness, and nothing can keep God from remaining true to His covenant with them!

Points To Ponder

- The remaining visions in the interlude between the sounding of the sixth and seventh trumpets, and what happens when the seven trumpet sounds
- The significance of these visions, and possible explanations of what they mean as we summarize what we have seen in the first half of the book of Revelation

Chapter Twelve

With this chapter the transition is made from Christ’s judgment on Jerusalem (chs. 6-11) to His judgment on Rome (chs. 13-19). To expedite the transition, we are told of Satan’s effort to destroy the work of Christ and His church.

We read of his failed attempt to prevent the male Child from being born and assuming His rightful place of authority as ruler of the nations (1-6).

An effort to usurp that authority by waging war in heaven is thwarted, resulting in the devil and his angels being cast to earth. That prompts a loud voice in heaven to proclaim that salvation, strength, the kingdom of God and the power of His Christ has come. Because the accuser (i.e., the devil) has been cast down, those in heaven who overcame by the blood of Jesus and their testimony, and who did not love their lives to the death, could rejoice. But woe is proclaimed to those on the earth, because now the devil has come down to them and he knows his time is short (7-12).

At first the dragon’s efforts are directed toward the woman who gave birth to the child. However, she is given wings to fly to her place in the wilderness where she is nourished for a time, times, and half a time (1,260 days, cf. v.6). Even the earth helped the woman, so enraging the dragon that he went to make war with the rest of her offspring, identified as those who keep the commandments of God and have the testimony of Jesus Christ (13-17).

While the identities of the male child and the dragon are rather evident, who is the woman and the rest of her offspring? I suggest the woman represents the spirit of faithfulness in God’s messianic community (perhaps best exemplified by Mary) who kept covenant with God. Called “the daughter of Zion” in prophecy (cf. Mic 4:10; 5:2ff; Isa 66:7ff), she produced not only Christ, but His first disciples as well, beginning with the faithful Jewish Christian community that escaped the fall of Jerusalem by fleeing into the wilderness (cf. Re 12:13-16). Satan therefore changed his attention from Jewish Christians in Palestine to Christians in Roman lands, i.e., the woman’s offspring (cf. Re 12:17).

Thus the chapter reveals why a period of great tribulation was about to come upon Christians, especially in Asia Minor (cf. Re 2:10). Satan was frustrated by being thwarted at every turn. Cast down to the earth, he would make every attempt to destroy the disciples of Jesus. Forces he would use are introduced in chapter thirteen.

Points To Ponder

- The primary force behind the persecution coming upon the early Christians
- Why the persecution of the early church was so intense

The Book Of Revelation

Chapter Thirteen

This chapter reveals two agents the dragon (Satan) would use in carrying out his war against the people of God.

The first is the beast from the sea. Described by John as having seven heads and ten horns, there were ten crowns on his horns and on his heads a blasphemous name. The beast was like a leopard, with feet like a bear and a mouth like a lion. One of the heads of the beast appeared mortally wounded, but was healed. To this beast the dragon gave his power, his throne, and great authority, and all the world marveled and worshiped the beast. Given a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies against God, His name, His tabernacle, and those dwelling in heaven, the beast was also granted to make war against the saints for forty-two months. All on the earth worshiped him, except those whose names were in the Lamb's Book of Life. With this description of the beast and his activities, John gives a word of caution to the saints (1-10).

John then saw the beast from the land, having two horns like a lamb and speaking like a dragon. With the same authority as the first beast, this second beast causes all to worship the first by deceiving them with great signs. Telling them to make an image to the first beast, he was given power to make the image speak and put to death those who would not worship it. This second beast also causes all to receive a mark on their right hands or on their forehead, without which they cannot buy or sell. John then adds a word of wisdom, in which he tells those with understanding to calculate the number of the beast, which is the number of a man: 666 (11-18).

The identity of the first beast from the sea becomes clearer when we get to chapter seventeen. I agree with those who say this beast from the sea is the Roman Empire, personified in its persecuting emperors. The beast from the earth or land may represent the Roman Concilia, a committee set up in Asia Minor where the seven churches were located to enforce emperor worship at the time the Revelation was given (Summers). This they did by requiring a certificate that proved the bearer had been seen sacrificing to the idol of the emperor, without which one could not buy or sell in the marketplace.

The significance of 666 should not be underestimated, as John encourages those with understanding to calculate the number. Unfortunately, through many ingenious and fanciful ways people have come up with the number to represent just about anyone (e.g., the Pope, Hitler, Ronald Reagan). Keeping the context of Revelation and its time in view, the number 666 may be a cryptogram referring to “Lateinos” (which in Greek can be calculated to 666); and in turn points to the ruler of the Latin or Roman empire (Schaff, History Of The Christian Church, Vol. 1, p. 177). In Hebrew the number can be calculated to mean “Nero Caesar” (Adams). Taken more symbolically, the number may simply signify evil raised to its highest power (Hailey, Summers) as was the case in emperors like Nero and Domitian.

Points To Ponder

- The two “beasts” that Satan would use in making war against the saints
- The number of the beast and its mark consistent with the context of Revelation

Chapter Fourteen

Following the troubling description of the beasts in the previous chapter, this chapter provides scenes which appear designed to reassure the saints to remain faithful to God.

First there is the Lamb and 144,000 having the Father's name written on their foreheads, standing on Mount Zion. Singing a new song before the throne, the four living creatures, and the elders, the great company is described as male virgins, redeemed from the earth as firstfruits to God and to the Lamb. They follow the Lamb wherever He goes, and are without fault before the throne of God (1-5). I suggest this is a picture of the saints triumphant in heaven (perhaps the blessedness of faithful Jewish Christians first depicted in Re 7:1-8; cf. also He 12:22-24). Both the number and descriptive terms are symbolic, illustrating the blessedness promised for those who will persevere in their faithfulness to God.

Next comes three angels and their proclamations. The first angel and his proclamation may indicate that the gospel will continue to be spread (despite the efforts of the dragon and the beasts). People should therefore fear God and worship Him (not Caesar), for the hour of God’s judgment has come (6-7). The proclamation of the second angel announces the fall of Babylon, described later in great detail (8). The third angel proclaims the terrible judgment and eternal torment to befall those who worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark (9-11). The three proclamations are then followed by an explanation that the patience of the saints consists of keeping the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus, with a voice from heaven telling John to write of the blessedness of those who die in the Lord (12-13).

The chapter concludes with a depiction of two harvests. The first shows the Son of Man on a white cloud reaping the harvest of the earth (14-16). The second depicts an angel reaping the grapes of the vine of the earth, which are then thrown into the great winepress of the wrath of God, producing a river of blood almost two hundred miles long (17-20). These two harvests may be different ways of describing the same judgment about to come upon those who follow the beast, or the first may depict that Jesus will safely harvest His own while God’s wrath is being poured out on His enemies. I do not believe either represents that which will occur when Jesus comes at the end of time (though they may certainly foreshadow that great event). Instead, like the angelic proclamations they reassured the Christians of John’s day that God’s hour of judgment was soon to come upon their enemies (e.g., the Roman empire).

Points To Ponder

- The series of scenes depicted in this chapter
- How they may have provided comfort to the Christians of John’s day

The Book Of Revelation

Chapter Fifteen

With the main adversaries identified (the dragon, the sea beast, the land beast, and Babylon) and the people of God reassured of ultimate victory (chs. 12-14), the full outpouring of God’s wrath is about to be shown. Chapter fifteen is a “prelude” to the seven bowls of wrath described in the next chapter.

We are introduced to seven angels who have the seven last plagues in which the wrath of God is complete (1). Before the seven angels are given their bowls, however, John sees those victorious over the beast standing on a fiery sea of glass having harps of God. Singing the song of Moses and the song of the Lamb, they praise God for His righteous judgments (2-4). This scene is reminiscent of the Israelites praising God for their victory over the Egyptians after crossing the Red Sea (cf. Exo 14:30-15:21).

The seven angels with the seven plagues then proceeded out of the temple of the tabernacle of the testimony in heaven, clothed in bright linen and chests girded with gold bands. One of the four living creatures gave them seven golden bowls full of the wrath of God. At that point the temple was filled with smoke from the glory of God and His power, preventing anyone from entering the temple until the seven plagues were completed (5-8). Perhaps this scene was designed to convey that the time of God’s longsuffering was over, and the outpouring of His wrath was the result of fulfilling the covenant He had with His people. God is about to avenge His saints!

Points To Ponder

• How the stage is set for the final outpouring of God’s wrath on the beast and those who follow him

The Book Of Revelation

Chapter Sixteen

In this chapter the full outpouring of wrath upon the enemies of God is depicted. The seven angels with the seven bowls pour out “the seven last plagues” (Rev 15:1). Notice that these are not partial judgments, as with the seven trumpets described earlier (chs. 8-11). In the pouring out of these plagues “the wrath of God is complete” (Rev 15:1).

In the first four bowls, God’s wrath is poured out on the earth, the sea, the rivers and springs, and the sun. Affected by these plagues are those who had the mark of the beast and who worshiped his image.

God’s judgment upon them is proclaimed righteous and just, because they had been guilty of shedding the blood of saints and prophets. Amazingly, their response is to blaspheme God, and refuse to repent and give Him glory (1-9).

The fifth bowl is poured out on the throne of the beast and his kingdom, resulting in darkness. The painful suffering of the wicked continue, as does their blasphemy and refusal to repent of their deeds (10-11). The sixth bowl is poured out on the river Euphrates, preparing the way for the kings from the east. John then saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, the beast, and the false prophet. Described as the spirits of demons, they perform signs and gather the kings of the earth to the place called Armageddon, for the battle of the great day of God. At this point Jesus speaks both a warning and blessing, for those who watch and keep their garments will be blessed, as He is coming as a thief (12-16).

The seventh bowl is poured out and a loud voice from the temple in heaven cries out, “It is done!” The declaration is followed by thunderings, lightnings, and a great earthquake. The great city was divided into three parts, and cities of the nations fell. Great Babylon was remembered by God, to give her the cup of the wine of His wrath. Every island fled away, the mountains were not found, and great hail from heaven fell upon men. The latter caused men to blaspheme God, unwilling to repent of their evil deeds (17-21).

The seven bowls of wrath depict a judgment upon pagan Rome that is more final than the judgment depicted earlier with the seven seals and seven trumpets against unbelieving Jerusalem (Re 6-11). While God would not destroy unbelieving Jerusalem completely, the judgment against pagan Rome as a world empire would be total.

Chapters 17-19 will elaborate upon the judgments upon the beast, the false prophet, and Babylon, identifying them in more detail, and describing their ultimate downfall.

Chapter Seventeen

This is a key chapter, for the mystery of the great harlot and the beast is explained, and one’s understanding of this chapter will affect their interpretation of the rest of the book.

John is carried away into the wilderness where he is shown the great harlot “Babylon”, with whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication and the inhabitants of the earth were drunk with the wine of her fornication. She is seen sitting on a scarlet beast with seven heads and ten horns. She is dressed in purple and scarlet, adorned with gold, precious stones and pearls. In her hand is a gold cup full of abominations and the filthiness of her fornication. On her forehead is written:

MYSTERY,
BABYLON THE GREAT,
THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS
AND OF THE ABOMINATIONS OF THE EARTH

Seeing the woman drunk with the blood of the saints (Old Testament saints?) and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus, John marvels with great amazement (1-6).

The angel then proceeds to tell John the mystery of the woman and the beast that carries her. He begins with the beast first, described as one who “was, is not, and is to come” (ESV). This beast will ascend out of the bottomless pit (cf. Re 11:7) and go to perdition (cf. Re 19:20). The seven heads of the beast represent seven mountains upon which the woman sits. There are seven kings, five of whom have fallen, one is, and the other has yet to come. The beast is then described as the eighth king, though of the seven. The ten horns represent ten kings who give their power and authority to the beast, make war against the Lamb, and eventually turn on the harlot herself. The harlot is finally described as that “great city” (cf. Re 14:8; 16:19) which reigns over the kings of the earth (7-18).

As indicated in the introductory material, my understanding of this book focuses on the fact that John is given this revelation at a time when the beast “is not” (Re 17:8,11). Whatever explanation one gives for the beast, it did not exist at the time of the Revelation! It had existed, and to come, but at the time John was shown the vision, it “is not”.

One plausible explanation is that the seven (actually eight) kings represent Roman emperors, starting with Augustus. This would make Nero the fifth king, whose death in 68 A.D. left the empire in an uproar and may be the “deadly wound” referred to Re 13:3,12,14. Discounting Galba, Otho, and Vitellius whose insignificant reigns were short-lived during the turmoil, the sixth king (“one is”) would be Vespasian who restored order to the empire. This would make Titus the seventh emperor and Domitian the eighth. The beast that “was, and is not, and will ascend”(NKJV) therefore depicts the persecuting Roman emperor, seen first in the person of Nero (the beast who “was”) and later in the person of Domitian (the beast who “will ascend”). The ten kings who gave their power and authority to the beast appear to be vassal kings that supported the emperor in times of persecution.

The identity of the harlot is still an open question in my own mind. I used to lean toward the view that the harlot represents Jerusalem, often supported in her persecution of the church by the Roman empire but then destroyed herself by Rome in A.D. 70. It is interesting to compare such verses as Re 17:6; 18:20,24; 19:2 with Jesus’ statements in Mt 23:31-39. As foretold by Jesus in both Matthew and Revelation, God was about to avenge His apostles and prophets on this city “who kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to her” (Re 18:20; Mt 23:37). I still believe that Jerusalem is the focus of chapters 6-11.

Many understand the harlot to represent the commercial and immoral spirit of Rome (not the literal city itself, for she was never destroyed as described in later chapters) which was instrumental in opposing the people of God. There is much to be said for this view. Re 17:2,18; 18:3,9,11 certainly seem to fit Rome. I now lean toward this view in keeping with the main idea of Rome as the focus of chapters 13-19.

While the identity of the beast, the kings, and the harlot might be unclear in the minds of some, the outcome of the conflict described in this chapter is certain. In what may be described as the theme of this book, we are told that:

“These will make war with Lamb, and the Lamb will overcome them, for He is Lord of lords and King of kings; and those who are with Him are called, chosen, and faithful.” (Re 17:14)

Comforting words indeed to those early Christians who were persecuted by both the Roman emperor and unbelieving Jerusalem!

Points To Ponder

- The importance of this chapter in interpreting the book of Revelation
- That the beast “is not” when the Revelation was given to John
- The identity of the great harlot and the scarlet beast

Chapter Eighteen

In this chapter we find the fall of “Babylon the great” proclaimed, and the great mourning over her by those in the world. The fall of Babylon is proclaimed by an angel with great authority, who illuminated the earth with his glory. The reasons for her fall include how the nations and kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and how the merchants have become rich through her abundance. Meanwhile, a voice from heaven calls for the people of God to come out of her lest they receive the plagues to come upon her. Her judgment will involve death, mourning, famine, and utter destruction by fire, for it is the Lord God who judges her (1-8).

The fall of Babylon is mourned by the kings of the earth who committed fornication with her, and the merchants and sea-traders who had become rich by her. They all cry out “Alas, alas, that great city...” as they observe her judgment. They bemoan that in just one hour her riches came to nothing and she has become desolate. On the other hand, heaven itself, along with the apostles and prophets, are called to rejoice, because God has avenged them on her (9-20).

Finally, a mighty angel throws a large stone into sea to depict with what great violence Babylon will be thrown down. The sounds and sights of music, crafts, even weddings will be gone. The fall of Babylon is justified, for her merchants were great, by her sorcery the nations were deceived, and in her was found the blood of prophets, saints, and all those slain on the earth (21-24).

What is this chapter describing? If the date of the book suggested in the introduction is correct (spring, 70 A.D.), and Jerusalem is indeed the “harlot”, then this chapter likely refers to its destruction by the Romans in August, 70 A.D. This would be in harmony with Re 17:16, where those who first supported the harlot eventually turned on her. So it was with Jerusalem, who depended upon the approval of the Roman authorities to persecute the church, and later became the object of Roman persecution herself. Very fitting is the depiction of Jerusalem as a harlot, for she who should have been a great spiritual city had become a great commercial center by virtue of the roads that passed through her between Europe, Asia and Africa. Her spiritual adultery was also manifested by rejecting the many prophets and apostles sent to her (cf. Mt 23:31-39 with Re 17:6; 18:20,24; 19:2).

But if Rome (in particular her commercial and immoral spirit) is the “harlot”, then this chapter may describe the fall of Rome in 476 A.D. The statements in Re 18:3,9-19 (“all the nations...” and “the merchants of the earth...”) seem to fit Rome better than Jerusalem. The fall of “Babylon, the harlot” was due to her treatment of apostles, prophets, and saints (Re 18:20,24). When Revelation was written, Rome had already killed Peter and Paul, and by the time of Rome’s fall, there had been at least ten periods of persecutions by Rome against the church. Rome, like Jerusalem, certainly qualifies as “Babylon, the harlot!”

Points To Ponder

- The pronouncement and depiction of the fall of “Babylon the great”
- The reasons why Babylon would receive such terrible judgment
• The identity of “that great city Babylon, that mighty city”

The Book Of Revelation

Chapter Nineteen

This chapter illustrates the ultimate defeat of the enemies of God’s people. John hears a great multitude in heaven rejoicing over the fall of Babylon. The multitude is joined by the twenty-four elders and four living creatures, and a voice from the throne calling upon all God’s servants to praise Him (1-5).

John then hears heaven rejoicing in preparation for the marriage of the Lamb. His wife has made herself ready, and she is adorned in fine linen, signifying the righteous acts of the saints. John is then told to write that those invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb are truly blessed. John falls down to worship the one speaking to him, but is immediately rebuked and told to worship God (6-10).

The scene quickly changes as John sees heaven opened and Christ the warrior king on a white horse, followed by the armies in heaven on white horses. Described in terms reminiscent of His appearance in the first three chapters, He is ready to strike the nations and rule them with a rod of iron, even as He treads the winepress of the fierce wrath of Almighty God. As inscribed on His robe and His thigh, Jesus is truly “King of kings and Lord of Lords” (11-16).

With an angel standing in the sun and inviting the birds to gather for the supper of the great God, John then sees the beast and his forces gathered to make war against Christ and His army. But immediately the beast and the false prophet (the earth beast of Re 13:11-18) are captured and cast alive into the lake of fire. Their armies are killed with the sword proceeding from the mouth of Christ, and all the birds were filled with their flesh (17-21).

This chapter appears designed to reinforce the idea that Christ in His kingly rule will defeat those who have been persecuting His people. Just as Babylon the harlot would be destroyed, so the beast and false prophet would be overcome. If the latter two represent the Roman empire in its persecution against the church, this section with its vivid imagery would have been fulfilled by 313 A.D. when Constantine brought an end to Roman persecution.

Points To Ponder

- The great joy in heaven over the fall of Babylon
- The excitement over the preparation for the marriage of the Lamb and His wife

Chapter Twenty

Previous chapters have illustrated the defeat of agents used by Satan to persecute God’s people. One by one we have seen the fall of Babylon, the beast, the false prophet, and the armies they had gathered. What about Satan, the dragon who gave authority to the beast in his efforts to wage war against the saints (Re 12:17-13:7)? And what of those killed by the agents of Satan?

This chapter reveals the binding of Satan for “a 1000 years”. It most likely depicts a long period of time in which Satan is no longer able to deceive the nations as he did during the time of the Roman empire (cf. Re 13:14; 20:3). It began following the end of Roman persecution and would continue for some time in the future. During this period, John sees souls reigning with Christ, who were beheaded for their faithfulness to Jesus and the word of God. No mention is made of reigning on the earth, so my conclusion is that they reign with Christ in heaven during this period (cf. Re 2:26-27; 3:21). This “first resurrection” may be a special blessing for the martyrs of Christ during the intermediate state (between death and the bodily resurrection at the end of time), while Re 7:9-17 may describe the intermediate state for the average Christian. Truly those who had been beheaded for the witness of Christ are “blessed and holy” (1-6)!

After the “1000 years” are over, Satan is released for a short time where he once again seeks to “deceive the nations” to persecute the people of God (cf. Re 13:14; 20:3,8,10). The mention of “Gog and Magog” is likely an apocalyptic reference to forces of evil at Satan’s disposal during this time, not any particular nation or nations. But the final attempt of Satan is quickly thwarted by the Lord, and the devil is cast into the lake of fire, where the beast and false prophet were (cf. Re 19:20). If any section of Revelation pertains to the time just prior to the Lord’s final coming, I believe it to be this one. The description is brief, for the book was written for the benefit of Christians in Asia Minor about things to shortly come to pass (cf. Re 1:1-4; 22:6,10). Those Christians would not experience this last attempt of Satan. But to assure them (and us!) that Satan would ultimately be defeated, we have the description found in these few verses (7-10).

The chapter closes with a description of the final judgment. Before the great white throne and Him who sat on it, all the dead are judged. Books are opened, including the Book of Life, and judgment is based upon their works. None escape the judgment, for the sea, Death, and Hades give up all the dead that are in them. Death and Hades are cast into the lake and fire, described as the “second death”. The same end is given to those whose names were not written in the Book of Life (11-15).

Chapter Twenty-One

Following the Judgment scene at the end of the previous chapter, the eternal destiny of the redeemed is now revealed. The motif of a new heaven and new earth, along with the New Jerusalem, is used to provide great hope and comfort to Christians. This is certainly nothing new, for both the Old and New Testaments provided similar pictures to increase anticipation of the future (cf. Isa 65:17-25; 66:22-24; He 11:10,13-16; 13:14; 2Pe 3:13). In each case, the eternal destiny of God’s faithful is described in terms that provided the greatest meaning and encouragement to the people of that dispensation. Here we see the destiny of the redeemed in terms depicting fellowship with God and protection by God.

John first sees all things made new. There is a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven and first earth are no more (cf. Re 20:11). He sees the holy city, New Jerusalem, “coming down out of heaven from God.” A loud voice from heaven declares that God will dwell with His people and be their God. God, who is the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the End, will comfort His people by removing all that causes pain, and provide the fountain of the water of life freely to him that thirsts. While those who overcome inherit all things and enjoy the blessings of being God’s children, the wicked and unfaithful have their part in the lake of fire and brimstone (cf. Re 19:20; 20:10,14-15) which is defined as the second death (1-8).

One of the seven angels who had the seven bowls (cf. Re 15:7; 16:1) then carries John to a great and high mountain, to show him “the bride, the Lamb’s wife”. This is none other than the great city, the New Jerusalem, which is seen “descending out of heaven from God.” It is a city having the glory of God, and the bulk of the chapter describes its prominent features. A great and high wall surrounds the city. Standing about 216 feet high and made of jasper, the wall has twelve pearly gates upon which are the names of the twelve tribes of Israel, with an angel at each gate. The wall has twelve foundations, each made of precious stones of various colors, upon which are the names of the twelve apostles. The city itself, made of pure gold like clear glass, is 1500 miles long in its length, breadth, and height. The street of the city is also pure gold, like transparent glass (9-21).

The glory of the holy city is described further by noting that there is no temple, for God Almighty and the Lamb are its temple. There is no need for the sun or moon, for the glory of God and the Lamb illuminate the city. Its gates are never shut, there is no night there, and the nations of the saved along with the kings of the earth bring their honor and glory into it. Only those written in the Lamb’s book of life enter this glorious city, ensuring that it remains free from any abomination and defilement (22-27).

The Book Of Revelation

Chapter Twenty-Two

In the previous chapter John described the glory of the New Jerusalem as the eternal destiny of the redeemed was revealed. In the first six verses of this chapter, John’s vision of the glorious future for the people of God is completed with a brief description of the river of life, the tree(s) of life, and the throne of God and of the Lamb. With the river of life proceeding from the throne, and the tree (the definite article is not in the Greek, so perhaps two trees on either side of the river) of life bearing fruit every month along with its healing leaves, the picture is one of provision from God. Eternal fellowship with God, stressed in the previous chapter (cf. Re 21:3-4,7), is emphasized again with the promise of seeing His face and having His name on one’s forehead. With no more curse (cf. Gen 3:17-19), the redeemed shall serve God and the Lamb on the throne. There is no night nor need for the sun, for the Lord God gives them light (cf. Re 21:23). The redeemed will also reign forever and ever (1-5).

The remainder of this chapter contains the grand conclusion of this wonderful book. The angel who showed John the holy city stressed that the events described in this book were soon to take place, such that John is not to seal the book (cf. Re 22:6,10; contrast this with Dan 8:26). Jesus Himself states three times that He is coming quickly (cf. Re 22:7,12,20), which I take to refer to His coming in judgment as described throughout this book (cf. Re 3:10-11). With a reminder of the blessedness of those who do His commandments, Jesus, who is the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the End, the First and the Last, the Root and Offspring of David, the Bright and Morning Star, declares that He sent His angel to testify of these things to the churches. The Spirit and the bride join in with an invitation to let those who thirst come to drink of the water of life freely. The book ends with a fearful warning not to add to or take away from the book, a final promise of the Lord’s coming, and a two-fold prayer calling for the Lord Jesus to come, and for His grace to be with all the brethren (6-22).

Concluding Thoughts

As stated in the introduction to this study, the book of Revelation is unique in that it contains apocalyptic literature. Filled with figurative and symbolic language, it has been subjected to much abuse by many who have proposed to interpret it, especially by those who take the futuristic approach to the book.

I am persuaded the key to handling and understanding Revelation properly is to let the first three chapters set the context in which the book should be interpreted. In those chapters we learn that the book:

- Was intended to be understood (a revelation = an unveiling) - Re 1:1
- Was about things that would soon take place, not thousands of years later - Re 1:1, 13; 22:6, 10
- Could be understood even by an individual reading to a public audience - Re 1:1
- Is filled with signs and symbols ("signified"), likely understood by the original readers - Re 1:1
- Was addressed to seven specific churches in Asia, so any interpretation must first be applicable to those churches and their times - Re 1:4, 11; 2:1-3:22
- Was written to churches who had already experienced persecution from unbelieving Jerusalem and pagan Rome, with more to come - Re 2:9-10, 13
- Contains promises to those in the seven churches who overcome by remaining faithful, even to death, which promises are mostly depicted in their fulfillment by visions later in the book - Re 2:7 (cf. Re 22:2, 14); Re 2:11 (cf. Re 20:6, 14; 21:8); Re 2:26-27 (cf. Re 20:4-6); Re 3:5 (cf. Re 7:14-17; 20:12, 15; 21:27); Re 3:12 (cf. Re 7:15; 21:1-27; 22:4); Re 3:21 (cf. Re 20:4-6; 22:5)

The theme of the book is clear: Jesus is coming to judge! He now reigns as King of kings and Lord of lords! (Re 1:5, 7; 11:15; 17:14). His coming judgment(s) as depicted in Revelation involve judging churches (Re 1-3), unbelieving Jerusalem (Rev 4-11), pagan Rome (Rev 12-19), Satan and the world (Rev 20-22).

Efforts to interpret the book should give special attention to clarifying statements found throughout the book like these:

- “…where also our Lord was crucified” (Re 11:8) - identifies the city being judged in the first half of the book as Jerusalem.
- “Here is wisdom. Let him who has understanding calculate the number of the beast, for it is the number of a man: His number is 666.” (Re 13:18) - makes clear that the identity of the beast could be known by the original recipients (likely “Nero Caesar”, or the "Latin One").
- “Here is the mind which has wisdom: The seven heads are seven mountains on which the woman sits. There are also seven kings. Five have fallen, one is, and the other has not yet come. And when he comes, he must continue a short time. The beast that was, and is not, is himself also the eighth, and is of the seven, and is going to perdition.” (Re 17:9-11) - Identifies the harlot as being supported by Rome. Also, that whatever the beast represented, it “is not” at the time of the writing of Revelation. That suggests to me that the book was not written during the time of Nero or Domitian, but more likely during the reign of Vespasian. Similarly, that “kings” could not symbolize world empires, for that would rule out the Roman empire as having anything to do with the identity of the beast (since the Roman empire was in existence at that time).

- “These words are true and faithful” (Re 21:5; 22:6) - This expression prefaces and concludes the description of the new heavens and new earth, along with the New Jerusalem, the holy city which descends out of heaven from God. “True” means “real, genuine” and “faithful” means “trustworthy”. This suggests to me the possibility that the description of the eternal state of the redeemed in Re 21-22 are more realistic and reflective of that which is to come than were the visions seen earlier throughout the book (which were clearly symbolic). It certainly coincides with other scriptures that are not figurative in their context (cf. He 11:16; 13:14; 2Pe 3:13-14).

Despite its challenges, I find the book of Revelation fascinating and filled with much benefit for the Christian today. Studying Revelation, we learn of Christ’s power and sovereignty over the kingdoms of this world. Like other books of the New Testament that may have been written to address specific situations affecting churches in the first century, we can make application to our own lives should we find ourselves facing situations similar to those endured by the Christians of the first century.

And remember, at some point Satan will be released once more to deceive the nations in a last attempt to destroy the church (Re 20:7-10). Should we find ourselves living at that time, let us never forget the key passage in this book:

These will make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb will overcome them, for He is Lord of lords and King of kings; and those who are with Him are called, chosen, and faithful. (Re 17:14)

So with the aid of Christ and the rest of the New Testament to guide us, let us heed these words of the apostle Peter...

Nevertheless we, according to His promise, look for new heavens and a new earth in which righteousness dwells. Therefore, beloved, looking forward to these things, be diligent to be found by Him in peace, without spot and blameless; (2Pe 3:13-14)

And may our attitude always be that as expressed by the apostle John at the end of Revelation...

Even so, come, Lord Jesus! (Re 22:20)
